By David Hoffman Washington Post Service WASHINGTON - The White

The administration has asserted that the weapons shipments were not approved as part of a swap for bostages, but to improve U.S. relations with Iranian moderates. The documents made public Fri-day were Mr. Reagan's intelligence finding last Jan. 17 that authorized

"If all the hostages are not released after the shipment of the first 1,000 weapons, further transfers would cease," the memorandum stated. All the hostages were not released, but there were at least four arms deliveries after the Jan. 17 finding was signed. In all, more than 2,000 TOW

HACKENSACK, New Jersey --- Mary Beth Whitehead signed an agreement to have a baby for a couple in exchange for $10,000. But in the delivery room, moments after her daughter was born, she changed her mind.

"At the end, something took over," the New Jersey housewife testified Thursday. "I guess it was just being a mother. It overpowered me. I just cried and cried. I didn't want the $10,000. I just wanted my child."

Her voice cracking, her eyes streaming tears, Mrs. Whitehead, 29, was on the witness stand in a case that for the first time in a U.S. court tests the validity of a surrogate mother contract.

Upward of 600 children have been born in the last decade through agreements in which a woman is paid to be artificially inseminated with the sperm of a man whose wife is infertile. The woman then gives up the child to the couple.

Although three other cases of mothers who changed their minds have been cited by clinics that sponsor such arrangements, all have been settled out of court, with the father giving up the baby.

However, in the case of "Baby M," as the 9month-old girl born to Mrs. Whitehead is known, the father, William Stern, a biochemist from the suburban town of Tenafly, and his wife, Elizabeth, a pediatrician, seized the child in July after a court awarded them temporary custody.

They are now asking Judge Harvey R. Sorkow of New Jersey Superior Court to enforce the surrogate contract that was arranged by the Infertility Center of New York, a Manhattan clinic, and to deny visitation rights to Mrs. Whitehead.

"Everybody is talking about mothers' rights and nobody seems to be concerned about fathers' rights," Mr. Stern said Thursday outside the courtroom. "Fathers have dreams, too." At the trial, which began Monday, the Sterns wept on the witness stand. Richard Whitehead, Mary Beth's husband, testified that he too had changed his mind in the delivery room, as he watched his wife "crying bysterically." The case has attracted national attention. About 40 book and movie offers have been made to both couples. Attomeys say they expect the case to reach the New Jersey Supreme Court and set a precedent.

Legislation to govern the practice, which critics oppose as a form of "baby selling," has been debated in more than a dozen states and the District of Columbia, but no laws have been passed.

Mrs. Whitehead, a high-school dropout who was married at 16 and has two older children, answered a newspaper advertisement placed by the infertility center in 1984.

In almost four hours of testimony Thursday, she said that she had felt the pain of her sister, Beverly, who could not have children. "I thought that God would" aid Beverly, she said, if she helped another couple.

Mrs. Stern, 41, testified that she had delayed pregnancy until her medical residency was finshed in 1981, hat then discovered she had a mild form of multiple sclerosis. She said she feared she might become paralyzed if she were to become pregnant. Mrs. Whitehead's attorney, Harold Cassidy, called this "an irrational fear." He said he would call on medical experts to refute the contention that Mrs. Stern could not bear children. The contract asserts that she is "infertile" and could not be enforced if she is fertile. Mr. Cassidy maintained.

Mr. Stern, 40, testified that he was the only child of refugees from Nazi Germany, bosh deceased. He said he wanted a child biological-See MOTHER, Page 6 changed dramatically.

By Bill Keller New York Times Service MOSCOW -- A leading Soviet jazz-rock composer has extolled the virtues of heavy-metal rock music as a way for young work-ing-class Russians to work out their resentment toward more af-fluent members of Soviet society. "They just like to wave their hands and then calm down," Aleksei Kozlov, saxophonist and composer for the jazz-rock group Arsenal said Thursday. "If we forbid this music, they will display their aggressiveness in other forms."

This lecture on rock's role in abating class tensions was deliv-ered at an officially organized news conference at the Soviet. Foreign Ministry on "the problems of contemporary Soviet rock.'

Flanked by two Foreign Ministry officials, Mr. Kozlov, whose group has long had government approval, called for greater candor in Soviet rock lyrics and urged that young people be al-lowed to dance at rock concerts - despite the complaints of some concert hall managers that the more avid heavy-metal fans have a tendency to smash the furniture.

Once derided in the press as a product of Western dissolution, rock music has become the latest tool for stimulating a younger generation bored and disaffected by the traditional run of youth activities offered by the Soviet state.

Argentine Rights Groups File Charges BUENOS AIRES (WP) - Argentine human rights groups have filed more than 1,000 criminal charges against about 650 people, including at least 98 retired generals and admirals, in an effort to initiate cases on rights violations before a Feb. 22 deadline set by President Raul Alfonsin and Congress.

Eleven rights groups said they had asked the armed forces' highest tribunal Thursday to take immediate action on the cases. Should it fail to do so, they said, the cases would pass to civil jurisdiction. Those accused included five active-duty generals and one serving admiral.

The law approved last month at the request of Mr. Alfonsin stipulates that security force personnel and others not called by a court to testify before Feb. 22 cannot be indicted after that date for crimes committed in the 1970s during the so-called "dirty war" against leftist guerrilla groups.

When asked about this in late December. Mr. Fang said that Mr. Wan had not made any such simplistic statement but had spoken of democratic rights granted by the Chinese Constitution. Whatever the truth may be, Mr. Fang's student admirers are determined to lieve the more dramatic version of the story. What is certain about Mr. Fang is that he has questioned some Marxist tenets as well as Chinese educational methods and has strong-ly advocated that intellectuals pursue independent thinking and assume a leadership role. This is evident in an interview he gave to the official weekly English-language maga-zme Beijing Review, published Dec. 15. In the interview, Mr. Fang said: "The emergence and development of new theories

Not only were many documents destroyed, the judge said, but offidestroyed, the junge same denying cials of the agency lied in denying the existence of two computeria filing systems of other materials of potential importance to the veterans' case.

Judge Patel ordered the Veterans Administration to establish an internal procedure that would guarantee access to its records and to withhold no more records unlaw-fully. She said she would appoint an overseer to evaluate the agency's plan and compliance.

Gena Cadienz, a Justice Department lawyer who represented the Veterans Administration, told the court that allegations of harass-ment of one witness, Ronald B. Abrams, had been referred to investigators for possible prosecu-tion. The lawyer declined to say whether the department would appeal the judge's ruling.

The unusual order imposing economic sanctions against a U.S. agency was handed down as a resuit of a lawsuit brought by a veterans group, the National Associa-tion of Radiation Survivors. The veterans are seeking to overturn a Civil War-era law that still sets a $10 limit on lawyers' fees in seeking veterans' benefits.

The organization said it represents thousands of veterans who were exposed to life-threatening doses of radiation while occupying Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Japan, where the first atomic bombs were exploded in 1945, and at subsequent nuclear tests after World War II. It contends that veterans need sophisticated and therefore costly legal help to press claims, which the Veterans Administration has denied, and that they suffered debilitating effects because of ex-posure to the radiation.

Judge Patel ordered the Veterans Administration to pay a sum equivalent to virtually all the legal fees and costs the veterans group incurred in seeking to gain access to the agency's records, plus $15,000 that will be placed in a fund used 030

Ideas for a Latin Opening

There is a small new flare of diplomacy in Central America. Some of the Latin democracies, expecting a military surge in Nicaragua as the contras received fresh U.S. aid, have sought to head off the surge by reviving the Contadora peace talks. These talks have been in limbo since the United States pronounced their fruits of last summer unacceptably favorable in the Sandinists. At the same time, Costa Rica, no powerhouse but a decent democratic country fearful of being drawn into the fire, is advancing an initiative to get all the world's democracies to shake a finger at Managua.

Is any of this for real? A deep galf remains between the Sandinists, who wish to consolidate power on their Marxist terms, and the United States, which is working through the contras to restore democracy to Nicaragua and break the Sandinists' Cuban and Soviet ties. Neither in Managua nor in Washington is flexibility visible. The Nicaraguan government seems determined to stave off the oew military challenge of the contras, and the U.S. government seems equally determined to stave off the new political challenge of the Democrats.

Still, it would be unforgivable for any reasonable negotiating opening not to be explored. There may be one. Though the Organization of American States is sidelined by internal divisions, its secretarygeneral, João Clemente Baena Soares, has oined an effort to revive Contadora. The United States has formally complained about the Brazilian diplomat's role. But why complain? The problem is not that the United States gets had publicity because of its complaining; it can live with that. The point is, why oot try to use the horsepower added by Mr. Baena Soares (and by his fellow Contadora recruit, UN Secretary-General Javier Pérez de Cuéllar) to explore some of the new ideas floating around? Such as the idea of making the next mayoral elections in Nicaragua a test of the Sandinist's avowed, if dubious, taste for pluralism. All of the Latins except those most dependent on the United States say there is a better chance of reining in the Sandinists by political envelopment than by military assault. They may be fooling themselves, but the prevalence and political roots of this view leave the U.S. government pretty much isolated in its commitment to a con-tra enterprise lacking both military and political credibility in most Latin eyes. The American choice has always been between two different sorts of chances. The diplomatic chance at least offers the United States good Latin democratic company. - THE WASHINGTON POST.

Right Man for the CIA

The sad truth about Washingtoo's chief collector of secrets is no longer a secret. There seems to be no chance that William Casey, the director of central intelligence. can recover sufficiently from a cancer operation to resume his duties. Already the capital buzzes with speculatioo about who should succeed him. Bot in order to get the right who, there has to be a lot more thinking about how to make the choice.

The country has gone through enough turmoil involving the CIA; Mr. Casey's departure provides the chance to step back and consider the criteria for appointment. Should the oext DCI, as the incumbent is known, be a career intelligence officer, someone who knows the business and is detached from politics? Or should the next director be a close associate of the president, someone whose access to the Oval Office can open ears to the CIA's expertise?

The Casey example forms a strong argament that presidents and Congress should push hard for compolitical directors.

The DCI heads oot only the CIA but the whole intelligence community, 100,000 people, with a budget in the billions. It includes the National Security Agency, which deals with communications, the National Reconnaissance Office, which manages spy satellites, and various Pentagon operations. There is no real problem with collection of information. People on the right and the left favor continued upgrading of these capabilities. The difficulties center on covert operations like the "secret"

These are the questions that have been asked about Mr. Casey. He deserves high marks for reinvigorating the agency. But suspicions of partisanship followed him evervwhere. He was Mr. Reagan's 1980 campaign manager, and the president broke all precedent by making him DCL Mr. Casey did not restrict himself to providing intelligence but became a strong policy advocate, particularly of covert actions.

The DCI's first task is to provide the president with reliable information, not to become a cheerleader or an apologist. Having a political pal of the president as director raises doubts about the analyses and the information, even if the doubts are unfounded. It clouds the integrity of the agency. At the same time, a careerist risks being too much a company man.

The DCI, after Senate confirmation, serves at the president's pleasure. It would probably be preferable that the director be thought of in the same way as the director of the FBI - Republican or Democrat, but neither a crony nor a strong partisan or policy advocate. The ideal candidate would be familiar with the intelligence business, but not a careerist; it would be someone who could serve a president of either party. The FBI director is also limited to one 10-year term. That model might be right for the director of central intelligence, though the job carries so much veiled power that a shorter term, say six years, might be better. Meanwhile, with or without congressional guidelines, the president must soon pick a successor. It would be easy to choose a political ally from the Senate or a caretaker professional from the CIA. It would be farsighted to name a person outside partisan politics and above the intelligence bureaucracy. Here is the test: Is the candidate someone whom the next president would be pleased to keep on the job? -THE NEW YORK TIMES ceremonial. Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy carried no proposals with him to Amman, Jeruem and Cairo last week. He was anthorized to inform the govern-ments in those capitals that the Umied States "would be helpful if it could" to the Middle Eastern peace process, such as it is. He inquired if they might have some suggestions. It is difficult to imagine what Deputy Secretary of State John Whitehead is to say to the East European governments that can be constructive.

What is there to say? That a U.S. government still exists? That it would like to put together a policy that could repair the devastation caused in recent weeks to allied relations and American diplomatic credibility?

Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini of Italy is one European who has been a friend to the United States, at some personal political cost, as well as a staunch enemy of terrorism. OPINION

A Reagan administration foreign policy could be resuscitated. There is no lack of things in do. Professionals in the State Department know what needs doing. The secretary of state could tomorrow take to the president a list of problems the United States might constructively and profitably address over the next two years. He could appeal to Mr. Reagan's idealism, his desire to be thought well of by history. Surely the president might be persuaded that the only way his administration will end well is by burying its past mistakes and trying to do something serious now. It is a weakness of the American system that everything depends on the president as an individual. In Britain, the cabinet as a whole bears responsibility for government, and its mbers can, and usust, act on their own authority if the prime minister falters. This is not the case for the American cabinet, fits members cannot act without the president, and Mr. Reagan, in difficulty, is known to back away from action.

State State State

But those who have accepted cabinet office have accepted the moral responsibilities of power. The members of Mr. Reagan's cabinet, Mr. Shultz in particular, are better placed than anyone to save the president, his administration, and with that, sal-vage something of the abused reputation of the nation are of the gasoline lines of 1973 and 1979, the devastation of once-great. basic industries, and the danger of depending on the politically volatile Middle East for much of their oil

How short Americans' memories

Unless the United States' rapidly reverses course, it will depend on oil imports for more than 50 percent of its consumption within four years. The 1973 and 1979 oil shocks dramatized one vital fact: America cannot hase its future on oil. Nearly half the energy used nationally in 1979 was oil, and more than 43 percent of that amount had to be imported. Americans realized they had to cat back on burning oil when other ener-gy sources could do the job, and rely more on abundant domestic sources, especially coal and uranium. Both lessons were undone in 1986,

Oil imports are up nearly one million barrels per day, to levels equivalent to those of 1973. Natural gas reserves will fall precipitously this year. Nearly two-thirds of American oil and natoral-gas contract drilling compa-nies have gone bankrupt. Domestic oil production has planmeted by half a million barrels per day, If Americans remain on this path, the ques-tion is not whether they will face another energy crisis, but when,

Consider the developments of 1986 that led Americans astray:

First, the so-called good news about prices. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries essen-tially disintegrated as a price-setting mechanism, and the price of oil dropped from $30 to about $8 before it began inching back up. Most U.S. citizens reveled in their good fortune, but thousands of others dependent on the oil industry lost their jobs.

Learning to Produce

During the past two centuries, in all of the world's rich countries, labor has been moving out of agriculture into industry. Food production has not fallen because farmers' productivity has steadily risen. ft has freed people for other kinds of work, making these economics grow and raising everybody's standard of living.

Now the same process is overtaking manufacturing. Within the past decade or so, in most of the industrial countries, employ-ment in manufacturing has been falling. But with only one exception, Britain, manufacturing output has continued to rise in the industrial democracies. Productivity is increasing, and labor is shifting from factories to services. It will be useful to keep this process in mind when legislation oo competitiveness and trade protection begins in move through Congress. People in Congress often talk as if the number of jobs in manufacturing were the true measure of industrial strength. That is wrong. As fac-torics learn to produce more goods with fewer people, prosperity rises.

But there are sharp variations from one country to another. The U.S. Labor Department has just published figures on manufacturing productivity through 1985 for most of the advanced countries. To see what is happening, it helps to compare national perfermance over a fairly long time — say, the dozen years beginning in 1973, when the long postwar boom ended. During those years the fastest gains in manufacturing productivity were made not in Japan but in Belgium, where it doubled; factory jobs there fell by more than a third. while output rose 20 percent. Japan's productivity gain was nearly as great, and since manufacturing jobs there held steady, output nearly doubled as well. The poorest performance in manufacturing productivity, among the major countries, was Cana-da's; having fallen into the habit of depending on its natural resources to generate its wealth, Canada has been careless about industrial efficiency. That carelessness has made its record even worse than that of the United States, the runner-up for last place. But in both countries, productivity (in manufacturing, although not in services) has picked up in the past several years. Could that signal a new and healthier trend? Maybe. Take a second look at Britain, which reached its peak year for manufac-turing employment in 1966. Its factory out-put is lower now than it was in 1973. But since 1980, productivity in manufacturing there has been rising at a rate approaching Belgium's and Japan's. With enough deter-mination, it seems, sudden and dramatic changes are possible even for the laggards. - THE WASHINGTON POST.

From left to right, the nongovernmental budget experts f talked to all found considerable merit in the administration's renewed effort to charge more user fees to people who benefit from government programs that serve only limited groups.

User fees for government loans, barge canals, irrigation systems or Coast Guard rescue services "are a sound idea," said John Makin of the conservative American Enterprise Institute. Alice Rivlin of the liberal Brookings Institution agreed that the fees "are a sensible way of raising revenues and getting more ratio-nal allocations of public resources." ## The Pardon as an Index of Tyranny

WASHINGTON - In 1982, Al-bania held an election that En-ver Hoxha, the Communist Party By Charles Krauthammer But in terms of politics or justice, the pardon is a fraud, "In all suprem-acy of power," said a 17th-century

chief, won by 1,627,959 votes to 1. A decisive victory. It suggested to me at the time a key to what political phi-losophers had long been seeking: a reliable tyranny index. The Trans Index, named after Al-bania's capital, holds that repressive-ness correlates with electoral success.

The higher the score rolled up by the ruling party in elections, the more tyrannous the regime. At one end of e spectrum are places like Albania. the Soviet Union and Syria, where 99 percent of the vote is the norm. At the other end are freewheeling semi-anarchies, like Italy, where it is unsafe to drive and where the ruling party never gets half the vote.

In between he orderly democracies like the United States (winning mar-gins of 60 percent, tops) and moder-ate antocracies like Mexico that will broach 70 but not much more for fear of embarrassment to all concerned. A few weeks ago, the Tirana Index met yet another challenge. In the midst of a severe food and energy sbortage, Romania held a referen-dum. The result: 17,699,772 Romamans voted yes, no one voted no. A shutout. A perennial contender for the honor of the most repressive re-gime on earth (in Romania, all typewriters must be registered with the police) had conducted what may be the most perfect election yet.

The Tirana Index is a proven instrument. But events over the holidays have persuaded me that, not-withstanding its accuracy and elegance, there is another measure of tyranny, more subtle and more melitative, that needs to be explored. Call Caught up in the same holi-day spirit, terrorists calling them-selves the Revolutionary Justice Organization chose Aurel Cornéa, one of five Frenchmen held captive in Lebapon and freed him Lebanon, and freed him.

A pardon is a wonderful thing, particularly if you are the one being pardoned, and particularly if, like the Sakharovs and Mr. Cornea, you are innocent. acy of power," said a 17th-century philosopher, "there is inherent a pre-rogative to pardon." The reverse is equally true: In all prerogative to pardon, there is inherent the supremacy of power. The logic of the pardon is that justice is a gift to be dispensed by power. It makes of freedom a legal indulgence, a grant, an act of seren-dipity. What is intended as a show of humanity is often a mere show of cynicism, a display of arbitrary power (why elemency for A, and not for B?) for political ends. Consider the manner in which the Soviets announced Mr. Sakharov's release. It betrayed the gesture's true purpose, which was to impress not Russians, but Westerners. The ansourcement on the Sakharovs came first from the Soviet Foreign Ministry. It is as if George Shultz, the U.S. ecretary of state, were in announce clemency for a convicted murderer. The free exercise of speech subse-uently permitted to Mr. Sakharov has been similarly one-sided. He has appeared all over American televi-son; be has yet to play Moscow. In democracies, the pardon should be used sparingly, not for dispensing clemency but for righting obvious miscarriages of justice that are other-wise irremediable. Only in the rarest of occasions should it supplant the workings of ordinary justice. Free countries have another mechanism for dealing with that. It is called law. The promiscuous dispensation of clemency is not a sign of political liberality, but one of those identifying marks of tyranny --- like winning

Always a Sucker

Regarding the opinion column "UNICEF: Where's the Phoniness?" (Dec. 23) by Stephen S. Rosenfeld:

I do not understand the author's comment about "the exploitable (but previously ill-exploited) fact that people are suckers for kids." It was well-exploited in the 1940s: When UNICEF's chief shipping officer in Paris was seeking a low price for transporting a large amount of cod liver oil, he would start talking about the kids. Always good for another 10-percent reduction, he would say. AL MALAKOFF.

Lancy, Switzerland.

BERLIN — The impression is taking root that the Government's "English peril" maneuver is making greater headway than was anticipated. Experts who a fortnight ago were pre-dicting sweeping Socialist gains [in the Reichstag] have now toned down their estimates and are talking of "Red" victories in only 78 instead of 100 or 120 constituencies. The effect of the Government's decision is indicated in the Bismarchian "Hamburg-er Nachrichten," which welcomes new armaments because: "The clash with England is only a question of time. We must therefore prepare ac-cordingly." It is announced that 1,428 candidates have been nominated in the Empire's 397 constituencies, According to the "Germania," the second ballots in the general election will take place on Jan. 22 [following the first ballots on Jan. 12].

MADRID --- Hammering away at the western suburbs to the slogan "Madrid must be ours now or never," the Nstionalist troops broke down the formidable resistance of the Reds in the Casa del Campo and the University City [on Jan. 9] and came within gunshot distance of the first houses of the capital. It was the sixth day of the furious offensive lauoched against Madrid, into which General Francisco Franco has thrown the pick of his men, heavy guns, tanks and airplanes. After some of the most desperate fighting in the whole civil with war, the Nationalists continued their advance from Las Rozas, capturing the inner suburbs of Aravaca, and storming the barricades on the western and northern oniskirts of Madrid. Meanwhile, the city was subjected to almost continuous bom-bardment from the air.

During his presidential campaign, Mr. Reagan attacked his tivals with the phrase, "There you go again!" It is the Reagan administration, sadly, that is encouraging policies that threaten U.S. national security. In the last 1970 the lived Stream

In the late 1970s, the United States was looking beyond the age of abun-dant oil. It was significantly increas-ing the amount of electricity generated by coal and nuclear energy, developing new technologies and promoting conservation. Today, the nation is curtailing development of new energy sources, adding still more obstacles to the ad-ditional use of nuclear power and rapidly increasing its dependence on oil and the Middle East.

Future historians may have a difficult time trying to explain why America reversed course. The events of 1986 may receive much of the blame, but the real fault lies with those who do not remember the lessons of 1973 and 1979 and are unwilling to plan for the global crisis that lies shead.

ing in the Sistine Chapel to work face to face with the powerful images of Michelangelo's frescoed ceiling, his hair has changed from brown with some gray to almost entirely white. And his face, which until recently generated a certain spontaneous pride and enthissiasm when he spoke of his position as the chief of the Vatican's program to restore more than 16,700 square feet (1,536 square meters) of Renaissance frescoes, now can quickly turn defensive and hostile.

With about half of the restoration work behind him, and Colalucci's attention turning toward the cleaning of the highly com-plex "Fall and the Expulsion," the Vatican has been beset by criticism from both home and abroad. Colahucci admits that the criticism has produced a change in his seelings about the project. The first complaints, primarily from art-ists, did not get much attention, but in recent months the project has become the subject of heated debate here.

heated debate nere. The Italian Communist Party newspaper L'Unità recently ran a story about Colainc-cr's work under the headline, "Restanto as-sassino?" (Restoration Assassin?). The Vati-can's indirect reply came at a conference on restoration held by Italy's National Re-search Council in early November. At the conference Colabucci and Fabrizio Mancinelli, curator for Byzantine, medieval and modern art at the Vatican Museums, explained the safeguards built into the restoration effort. The standing-room-only crowd-of scholars, technicians and officials ap-planded loudly, repeatedly. For Colalucci this was a sign that despite the increasing distant in some quarters, his project still has broad fumort. broad support.

Praise greeted the first phases of the 12year project, which aims at cleaning away the centuries of dust, soot and grease that have accumulated on the surface of Michelangelo's masterpiece. The effort was undertaken partly because Vatican restorers were concerned that the ceiling was suffering from water damage and peeling paint in some places. However, they also realized a cleaning could substantially enhance the appearance of the frescoes. And although some scholars might have found it difficult to reconcile the brilliant colors of the newly cleaned frescoes with the traditional conception of a Michelangelo who favored form and line over color, almost no one initially questioned the integrity of the project.

Complaints from recent opponents are as diverse as the theories on how Michelangelo painted. One critic argues that the restorers may be removing a layer of brushstrokes that the painter applied a secco, after the wet paint on wet plaster had dried. Another critic charges that Michelangelo might have used candle soot and animal fat to create murky shadows on his frescoes.

The objections generally focus on two points: whether Michelangelo's work is be-ing altered by the cleaning solvent, and since 1960. "There is nothing in particular that I worry about, but still the mood is very heavy. It's a shame too. We're beginning work on a picture that is extraordinarily beautiful and at the highest technical level. This should be exciting but instead I'm wor-

One of Colalucci's worries these days is James Beck, the chairman of the department of art history and archaeology at Columbia University and a scholar of Renaissance art. In an article in the October issue of Arts magazine, Beck raised a warning about the long-term effects of the restoration. "Would it not be safer and sounder to wait, even as long as a generation, if necessary," he wrote, "to a time when the techniques are in such a state that even the most subtle applications of substances that Michelangein may have applied himself to unify and consolidate the work could be preserved, if indeed there are any? What is the hurry anyway; no one has claimed that the frescoes are in imminent danger!"

Beck, who states that "until quite recently counted myself among those favorably impressed with the enterprise," writes that he became alarmed when he saw Raphael's "Isaiah" in Rome's Sant'Agostino Church and the 14th-century frescoes - not by Michelangelo - on the side walls of the Sistine Chapel that had been restored less than 10 years ago. Recalling that when he had seen them immediately after restoration, these paintings had seemed fresh and vivid, Beck said that they now seemed "undistin-guished and flat."

Beck's dissent has had an impact at the Vatican for several reasons. For one, none of the other critics enjoy Beck's academic creof the Arts in the Vatican Museums and other similar organizations in the United States provide highly valued support, ac-cording to museum officials. Despite the fact that Italian art scholars have expressed far more caustic criticism of the restoration, Beck's critique seems to have affected Colafucci the most because it comes from an early enthusiast and a respected colleague.

"All of the people who supported us at first still support us," said Colalucci, then referring to Beck as "Punico pentila," the only one who has repented. Beck, however, notes in his article that he is not alone, and that others have issued warnings similar to his. Colalucci argues that while Beck can voice opinions based on subjective observations, "All I can do is present the facts. And these facts are based on the hundreds of individual analyses and photographs examming the frescoes and the layers of material that have accumulated on top of them. This, plus my daily exposure to the frescoes for the past six years, is what I rely on."

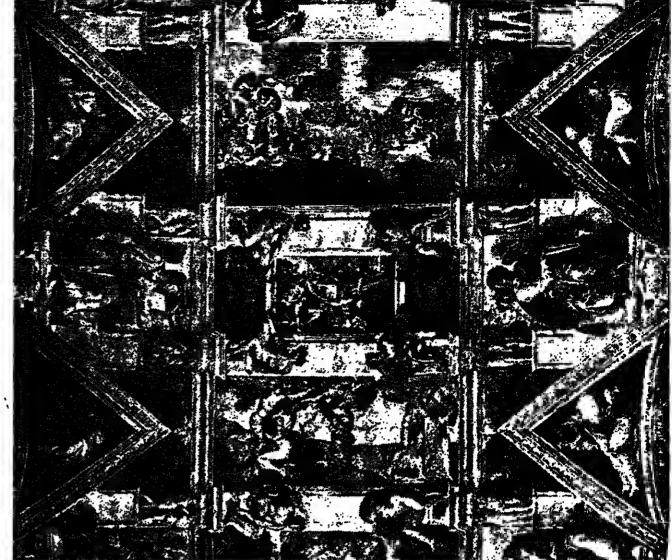

Sitting in his office in the Vatican Muse-ums' Pinacoteca, which houses paintings and apestries from the 11th to the 19th centuries, Colalucci recently responded to the points raised by Beck in the Arts magazine article and in subsequent statements. The restorer agreed with the professor that there are pollutants in the air today that did not exist when Michelangelo was at work on the chapel, but he said studies show there are no short-term dangers. Moreover, he said, it is inaccurate to say the cleaning robbed the frescoes of their protection and leaves them more vulnerable than before.

Frescoes were created with absolutely oo otection," he said. They are oot like paintings that are finished with a layer of varnish. There is nothing added to them. When they are produced perfectly they are the most resistant art form that exists."

Colamoci insisted that the extensive studies conducted before and during the restoration indicated there was no danger in cleaning the paintings. In particular, he argued, the tests show that none of Michelangelo's work is being removed. For example, microsamples of any a secce painting are tested for the presence of zinc white. A positive reading is a sure sign the paint is not Michelangelo's because paint using that substance was not invented until the 18th century. As for the 20th century, efforts have been made to ensure that the freecoes will not be mordinately bombarded by the wide range of today's pollutants. The Vatican has proposed three separate controls. The first, already installed, is a floor board covered by a special dust-absorbing carpet. It covers the staircase leading to the chapel and part of the chapel floor. Another is a soon-to-be-installed an environmental control system.

Colalncci raised strong objections to Beck's idea of halting restoration for a reassessment or in anticipation of new technologies. He maintained this would be "foolishpess that could ruin the works." There would be a great risk in doing only a partial restoration," he asserted "because it would produce aesthetic damage to the frescoes. One section would look so different from another, as one would be much dustier." As an assurance that restoration was not causing damage visible over time he suggested examination of the frescoes cleaned at the start of the project oearly six years ago. "Go see them," he urged. "They're still there, and they are fine

As Colalucci sees it, the controversy over the restoration effort and, in particular, its instigators can be divided into two parts; one reasonable, the other decidedly not. There are people who doo't accept the cleaning and can't accept new image of Michelangelo," he noted.

While Colalucci respects those who refuse to accept the idea of a "new" Michelangelo, he brusquely rejects those who claim that the frescoes might be damaged by the restoration or those who say the restorers could be removing touch-ups painted by the Renaissance master himself.

In addition to soot from candles and braziers, the frescoes have been subject to repeated interventions dating perhaps as far back as the late 16th century. The frescoes, Colalucci said, were altered by heavy-hand-ed restorers like Annibale Mazzuoli who, from 1710 to 1713, cleaned them with Greek wine and then touched them up with tempera paints. "You cannot talk about the Sistine Chapel as if it were an Etruscan tomb, discovered only yesterday exactly as Michelangelo left it," he said, "As restorers, we have had to deal with what came to us and we face some very complex situations up there.'

Given the complexity of his task Colalucci emphasizes a distinction between the philosophy of art and the science of restoration the art historian versus the art restorer. "Restorers, like myself, must know everything that art historians know plus much more." To be an art historian, Colalucci explained, doesn't necessarily mean that one is an expert on the materials that make up a work of art. "The only people qualified to be making statements about possible risks to the frescoes," he said, "are those who can look into a microscope and tell the difference between the color green, for example, used by Michelangelo and a color of nearly the exact same hue but which never appeared on Michelangelo's palette. Or, those persons," he continued, "who can recognize whether a brush stroke is Michelangelo or that of Mazzuoli," For Colalucci, the future seems to offer little relief from worry. "I feel like a soccer player before the championship game these days," he said with resignation. "I wish I could go on a retreat and be entirely cut off from the world, so that I could concentrate on what I have to do and not these other things. This all creates a kind of stress which doesn't let you work with tranquillity."

Barenboim's Trial 'Siegfried'

By David Stevens mal Hereld Tribune

PARIS - Daniel Barenboim is scheduled to conduct the next new production of Wagner's "Ring der Nibelungen" tetralogy at the Bayreuth Festival in 1988, a daunting prospect in an age when fewer and fewer conductors have a chance to grow up with it in the opera house. So he has been including it, a bit at a time, in his pro-grams with the Orchestre de Paris - the latest chapter being an ex-hilarating, splendidly cast third act of "Siegfried."

There is a lot to be said for this approach, aside from giving Baren-boim a chance to warm up for Bayreath. The final act of "Siegfried" is one of the most musically rich but theatrically static in all the "Ring." so it is particularly suitable for the concert format. It fits in with the tich Germanic diet the orchestra and its public have been getting during the decade of Barenboam's musical directorate. And the Paris musical directorate. And the Falls public, long without a complete staged "Ring" cycle on borne ground, is hungry for all it can get. (Admittedly, this has included Ra-dio France's complete "Ring" in concert last season under Marek Janowski,)

Barenboim, who makes no secret about his admiration for the great and often idiosyncratic conductors of the past (Furtwängler, Klemperer & Co.), and his orchestra have

The Chinese Foreign Ministry does not normally give its own figures in response to Vietnamese allegations of Chinese troop deaths in border clashes.

Although the Chinese spokes-man would not elaborate on his ence statement, the ministry on Wednesday dismissed earlier nese claims of 500 Chinese dead as "boasting" and an attempt to deceive Vietnamese and world public opinion.

In its account of the fighting on Wednesday, China said that its forces repulsed Vietnamese attacks and that more than 200 Vietnamese soldiers had been killed.

Diplomats said that Hanoi's 1,500 figure, if confirmed, would be the highest since the countries fought a brief war in 1979. The two sides have had intermittent clashes since then, and both sides have blamed the other for starting the latest fighting. In its Friday broadcast, moni-

Western diplomats in Beijing were skeptical about the accuracy of the Vietnamese casualty esti-mates, although they indicated that there had been serious fighting. The diplomats said the timing of the fighting, if initiated by China, might be linked to political devel-

Plane Lands IRAN: Memo Dealt With Hostages In Beirut As Airport Is Shelled

By Nora Boustany Washington Post Service

BEIRUT --- An artillery barrage hit Beirut's International Airport on Friday, just as a Middle East Airlines plane from Cyprus was landing. It was the second consecutive day that the airport has been shelled.

The recurrence of artillery barrages fueled fears that a campaign to disrupt Lebanon's only air link with the outside world was under way. On Thursday, one hour of concentrated shelling destroyed one of the sirtine's Boeing 707s and prompted a 30-hour closure to ciihan air traffic.

In southern Lebanon on Friday, Israeli warplanes attacked Palestinian guerrilla positions cast of Sidon, killing three persons and wounding seven others. The Marx-ist Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine said one of its fighters was killed and another was cials, speaking privately, said that the authorities, confronted by still missing

The Lebanese Forces denied that their militia was behind attacks against the airport. The Christian Voice of Lebanon reported that Amal was rocketing Christian strongholds.

Despite the exchange of accusascores of casualties were prevented tions, the exact source of fire was difficult to determine. Lebanese Army, Christian militia, Palestinian guerrilla and Druze hilltop po-sitions are spread across the hills overlooking the airport from the southeast to the northeast.

Christian demands for authorization to begin operations at a still nonfunctional airstrip at Halat along the northern Lebanese coast have been suspected as a prime motivation for blocking air transport from the Beirut airport, which is in the heart of Shiite Moslem ternitory.

Moslem leaders have called the move for a new airport a step toward partitioning the country along religious lines.

just three paragraphs long. According to the text released Friday, the first paragraph ordered William J. Casey, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, "to refrain from reporting this finding to the Compress as provided by to the Congress, as provided by Section 501 of the National Security Act of 1947, as amended, until I otherwise direct." Some members of Congress have called this order a violation of the law governing covert intelligence operations.

The second paragraph of the finding states: The U.S. government will act to facilitate efforts by third parties and third countries to establish contact with moderate elements within and outside the government of Iran by providing these elements with arms equipment and related materiel in order to enhance . Casey Knew of Diversion the credibility of these elements in their effort to achieve a more pro-United States government in Iran that these elements have abaudoned their goals of moderating their government and appropriated the materiel for purposes other than that provided by this finding." The memorandum was more ex- ment.

"I told them I would take her for a week," she added. "My life felt so empty. My life was shattered." Mrs. Whitehead acknowledged that the agreement she had signed stipulated that she sutrender the baby and sign documents permit-

The paper states: "The Israeli plan is premised on the assumption moderate elements in Iran can come to power if these factions demonstrate their credibility in defending Iran and in deterring Soviet intervention. To achieve the strategic goal of a more moderate Iranian government, the Israelis are prepared to unilaterally commence selling military materiel to Western-oriented Iranian factions "

The document adds, "Once the exchange relationship has commenced, a dependency will be established on those who are providing the requisite resources, thus allowing the providers to coercively influence near-term events."

The CIA acknowledged Friday that Mr. Casey and his deputy, Robert M. Gates, were informed in the fall of 1986 of "tennous speculation" that some Iranian money may have been diverted to the Nioaraguan rebels and they informed the White House, United Press International reported from Washington.

The next day the Whiteheads fled to Florida, where they lived until they were tracked down in July by private detectives hired by the Sterns. The Sterns, armed with another court order, seized the baby with the help of Florida police. The baby has lived with them since then.

[OT TELEGRAPH TO THE MERALD.] Roxs, October 8, 1887. I am able to confirm the rumor that Signor Criapi'a mysterious journey to Freidrichsrah is directly connected with an attempt to settle the Roman question. Bulgarian affairs may be touched on incidentally in the conferences of the Chaucellor and the Italian Premier ; but the main object of Prince Bismarck when he encouraged---if indeed he did not invite---Signor Crispi to undertake his journey was to prepare a reconciliation of the Pope and King Hombert, and so re-unite to the Vatican. A few days ago King Humbert was officially, though sccretly, informed that the Chancellor would be glad to confer with Signor Crispi on various matters of international importance, and letting it be understood that one of the these matters night be connected with the long-talked of reconciliation. This is all that can be learnt with certainty with regard to the Friedrichsruh interview ; but there is reason to believe that the basis of the reconciliation suggested was to be the cession to the Pope of all, or part, of Rome situate on the left bank of the Tiber.

WHAT HE USED TO SAT.

Some months since, in a conversation with Mgr. Galimberti at Vienna, I sounded that able diplomat as to the likelihood of such an arrangement being accepted hy the Vatican. Speaking perhaps with the remembrance of the recent diplomatic marcases of the Catholic Church in Germany strong in his mind, the Papal Nuncio remarked : " This would evidently not auffice for the dignity of the Holy See." I have no reason to think that the Pope is inclined to be more yielding now than hast spring. At the same timo Leo XIII w add scarcely refuse to negotiate on the basis of the restoration of the "Leonine"

City. What alterior interest Prince Bismarch Roman unestion may have in raising the Roman question at this particular moment remaine to be it's ; but is is, at least, probable that his chief aim is to ensure Germany's bring able to show a united front to France in the possible event of foreign complica-DODS.

LONDON NOTES.

GOSSIP IN THE CITY AND IN POLITICAL AND SOCIAL CIRCLES. [AT THE HERALD'S SPECIAL WIRE.]

LONDON, OCT. 4, 1887. A strong article is The Army and Nary Magazine published to day shows decidedly, if its facts and statistics are true, that the recent cession to Russia of frontier land by the Afghan Commission at the instigation of Sir West Ridgway, one of its members and now successor to Sir Redvers Buller at Dublin Castle, really gives the Russians the key to Herat and Candiliar. This is because the ceded territory constitutes a camping ground for a Russian iarmy of 150,000 men and with fertile supplies. The article bristles with startling facts as to the blunder.

THE PRESIDENT TRIP.

A VERY UNPLEASANT INCIDENT AT TER-RA HAUTE.

[SY COMMERCIAL CARLE TO THE RESALD.] NEW YORK, Oct. 3, 1887.

In Indianapolis Saturday, President Cleveland was escorted from the cars to the State House by a civic and military procession, where, in the presence of 25,000 people, he was welcomed by Governor Gray. ANOTHER NAVY ACCIDENT. FAULTY TACKLE CAUSING THE DEATH

OF A STOKER.

A fatal secident occurred on Sunday on board her Majesty's ship Temeraire abortly after she had anchored at Spithead, on arrival from the Mediterranean stetion with relieved crews. While the etcam pinnace was being hoisted out on the starband bow, ready for lowering when required, a hook of the purchase suddenly gave way, with the result that the craft was precipitated into the water, inking stern foremost. There was three men in the pinasce-a stoker named Finch, who was in the stoke hol: getting ready the fires, and two allo seamen who were adjust-ing the tackle. Perceiving the danger in time, the scamen jumped into the water, receiving some hart in doing so, but Finch was mable to extricate himself from his positio, and it is believed that he roceived a heavy blow on the head from some of the falling tackle, which dashed out his brains. As she fell almost perpendicularly, the pinnace glanced against the protruding muzzle of a Nordenfelt gun, and the force of the contact occasioned some structural damage, several large splinters flying in all directions. Finch sank with the pinnace. As soon as the two seamen had been rescued a signal was made to the dockyard for a diver, who commenced his work as soon as possible. He discovered the pin-nace bottom upwards, but no immediate efforts could be made to raise her, and Finch's body had not last night been TCCOTCTCC.

They sang, we are told, "Rule Britannia" with exceeding fervor, and made the dales ring with the declara-tions that they " never, never would be slaves." The latter part of the programme might perhaps have been omitted. Now that the materials for a test case Now that the materials for a test case are provided, it is hoped that, once and for all, the rights and the wrongs of the dispute will be actiled before a tribunal more impartial than the public option of Keswick and its neighbourhood. The question is, indeed, one of long standing. The proprietor of the Great Bauk Estate, of which Latrigg, or "Skid-daw's Coh," forms a part, takes one view of the matter. The public at large hold onother, and not long ago took meaoa identical with those of Saturday to pro-test against his interpretation of ancient wont and usage. PLAN FOR IRELAND

Sir Charles Gavan Duffy's Constitutional Scheme Discussed with Its Author.

PARNELLITE ADHESIONS

Probability that the Plan Would be Accepted a Final Settlement of the Irish Question.

Sir Charles Gavan Duffy the statemanonthor of "A History of Young Irland," has just passed through Paris on his way to the Riviera. I took the equortunity of interviewing him with regard to his " Plan of a Fair Constitution for Ireland," which he explained in o remarkable article in the current number of the Contemporary Review.

The chief points in the plan it will be remembered were as follows :--- An Irish Parliament consisting of a Senate and a Lower House, would sit in Dublin. The Lower House would consist of 1(15 members: the Senato of 54 members. The Senate would be partiv elected, partly nominated by the Sovereign (under the advice of her responsible Irish Ministers). Minorities would be ensured a fair representation. proportionate to their unmerical importonce in the conntry. The Lon-Licatemant would continue to act as the Queen of Ireland's delegate, with the right of Veto.

THE PLAN APPROVEN. The indiness of the scheme, which, as Sir Charles Garan Duffy frackly sinted, was intended not for the benefit of only Nationalists or Unionists, but for the contentment of all parties in Ireland, ensured it wickspread attention. prohaldy even its outhor himself hanly hoped it would have had a more than academic success. It would seen, how-ever, that the play has made a marked Buť impression upon the minds of many pro-minaent Irish and act a few English political mea ; while certain well-known Irish-American Nationalists, If we may judge from the opinions they expressed at the time of Mr. Gladstone's Bill, would be "The bir hir. Gladsone's Hill, would be prepared to scrept it as a final settlement of the Irish question. "How has your plan been received in Ireland and England, Sir Charles?" said I. "In Ireland," said Sir Charles, "it has received the assent of several of the men-whom the prople would meet enterly whom the people would most certainly follow. In England, some of the leading members of the late Gladstone Ministry have sporved its main principles. I rehave approved its main principles. I re-gret it is not possible to numrion names. Sixty or eighty important English papers have devoted articles to the plan. Many have disapproved it, but nous have treated it disrespectfully. While the chief Irish Conservativo organ has declared that, though it does not waot any Home Rule at all, yet if Home Rule must come, it would regard the guarantees for the pro-fection of the Protestant minetity as

-satisfactory." WHAT THE PARNELLITES SAY. " Does the Parnellite party approve it?" "Yes, certainly. Leading men of the Parnellite party are prepared to accept my roposals; and nona have expressed aay absolute dissent from it. The proposal to have two Honses instead of o single have two monses instead of o mingto Legislative Council has been especially and confially approved ; and though my plao for the nomination of the Lrish Senators is not universally accepted, the majority of those to whom it has been clerred are favonrable. "Do you really think, Sir Charles, that the plan-in its broad lines-would be scepted as a final settlement, or only with an orriers penete, as a step towards complete independence? "It is impossible to give a satisfactory reply to that unestion. But my firm con-riction is that such a settlement would be final. Nobody, I repeat, has raised now serious objections to it, except a few English Radicals who disdike the idea of baring two (Dembers). having two Chambera." "What does Mr. Davitt say to the scheme ? "He has made an utterance on the "He has made an interance on the subject: but my impression is that he dis-approves of having two Irish Chambers. This would probably he his chief objection." "How is it that, patting the press out of the question, there has been no public or the question, there has been no public prononcement on the plan in Ireland?" "The Coercion Bill was just coming into operation when the place was prob-lished, and Irishmen had more pressing matters to think of. I have learnt, however, in conversation and by letter, that the scheme has been widely and favourably considered."

Mr. Testa said that he expected Morgan Stanley's international index to rise 10 to 20 percent in 1987, with overseas markets again outpacing U.S. markets.

U.S. stocks posted their fifth consecutive sunnal gain in 1986. The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 blue-chip shares surpassed other indicators by rising 22.6 percent.

The investment environment was aided by declines in interest rates and oil prices, but analysts could cite no single overwhelming facflexible investor," said Peter Pietsch, an analyst tor for the market's performance.

Allied, a food and beverages group, said it would issue 14.3 million new ordinary shares, to be placed Friday at 347 pence per share, to meet the cost. Al-lied shares closed at 348 pence Friday on the London Stock Exchange

It said the acquisition would strengthen its position in Scotland and northeast England. Grand Metropolitan said Drybrough held a 7-percent market share in Scotland, which it called inadequate. 'It said the sale was part of a policy of strengthening Grand Metropolitan's brewing and retailing division, by disposing of peripheral interests.

24 Years After That 'Coldest Day' Loss, Giants Aim to Sneak Up on Title

NEW YORK - It's as if that key wind in 1952 blew the New York Giants' season-ticket subscribers away from a championship game for a quarter of a century. Now, finally, they will be able to attend another championship ne - against the Washington Redskins on Sunday at Giants Stadium for the National Conference title. But most of those 64,892 shivering spectators at Yankee Stadium on Dec. 30, 1962, still remembered it as the coldest day of their lives.

As Bart Starr approached coach Vince Lombardi after having been the ball-holder, the Packers' quarterback was too cold to celebrate,

"I think my ears are frozen," Starr said. That wind from left field had gusted up to 50

"I don't ever remember being hit so hard," Taylor said. "I bled the whole game. My arms bled from hiting that frozen dirt. And my miles per hour (80 kilometers per hour). Four years before that 1962 arctic afternoon, the Giants lost to the Baltimore Colts in overtime, 23-17. But those Giants still think they should have won in regulation.

With a 17-14 lead and slightly more than 2 minutes remaining, the Giants had a third-and-four at their 39-yard line. Halfback Frank Gifford ran a sweep to the right. But in the pileup, Gino Marchetti, the Colts' all-pro defensive end, had an ankle broken.

"I had that first down," Gifford said. "If the referee hadn't been so concerned about helping Marchetti and had marked the hall first, we'd have had the first down and the championshin. In 1938 they stopped the Packers, 23-17, when their Hall of Fame center and linebacker, Mel Hein, returned in the closing minutes after having suffered a concussion in the first half. By Ruth Youngblood Inited Press Intern FREMANTLE Australia -- The international jury pondering the sur-vival of Australia IV adjourned Friday night to seek more information before deciding whether the Ameri-ca's Oup defender finals will be an all-Kookshurts affair.

One more disqualification would drop Alan Bond's flagship to 7t points - five below presently sec-ond-place Kookabura II and 12 behind first-place Kookaburra III - and halt the 1983 victor's $13 million defense campaign.

Both Kookaburra II shipper Iain Murray and the Australia IV campaign's executive director, Warren Jones, indicated they will seek court action if the jury decision. isn't favorable.

"I hope fervently we don't have to resort to legal action," Jones said, but added that the Bond camp would seek legal recourse to stop its ouster from the best-of-nine series starting Jan. 14.

("I thought I heard my worthy father say, 'James, I left you independent."") He tried to pull out, but Lonsdale's will prevailed, and it was not until the summer of 1790 — a year after "The English Experiment" ends - that he finally broke free. The year after that, in May 1791, he published the "Life of Johnson." It can be something of a shock, reading about his oppressed state of mind while he enjoyed (or endured) Lonsdale's patronage, to recollect that he was simultaneously writing the great-est biography in the language. Already shot through with frustration and un-case, "The English Experiment" closes on a note of deep remorse after his wife's death. Yet it is far from being the depressing work that this may make it sound. Boswell remains Boswell, even in the midst of his troubles: eager, convivial, alert to his own inconsistencies, drinking too much and getting into scrapes. "How material is man!" he reflects after consuming a hearty dinner. "I myself an certainly much so." But he is affectionate, too, and touching and funny, and he continues to command sympathy through all his vicissitudes.

FW YORK - It's as if that icy wind in be able to attend another championship The note in another another chainsonship against the Washington Redskins on Nav at Gaints Stadium for the National Areance title. Bart Starr approached coach Vince Lomfi after having been the ball-holde, the

"I think my ears are frozen," Starr said.

That wind from left field had gusted up to 50 miles per hour (80 kilometers per hour).

"The ball was like a diving duck," said Y.A. Tittle, the Giants' quarterback. "I threw one pass and it almost came back to me. The short ones worked, but the long ball broke op. We needed the long one."

Tittle had thrown 33 touchdown passes that season. And with a 12-2 record under coach Allie Sherman, the Giants were primed to atone for a 37-0 loss in Green Bay in the 1961 title

But in the gusts of the title game, the Giants' bald 36-year-old quarterback completed only 18 of 41 passes for 197 yards. One of those fluttering passes was deflected by the Packers' Ray Nitschke to another linebacker, Dan Currie, who intercepted. Nitschke also recovered two fumbles.

As the wind shredded the American flag in center field, Jim Taylor churned for 85 yards and the Packers' only touchdown.

"I don't ever remember being hit so hard," Taylor said. "I bled the whole game. My arms bled from hitting that frozen dirt. And my tongue bled after I bit it in the first half." Taylor accused the Giants, notably Sam Huff, of playing dirty by piling on after they had stopped him. "Taylor likes to crawl," Huff snapped. "The only way to stop Taylor is to make sure that he's

The Giants got their only touchdown when Erich Barnes, their left cornerback, blocked a punt and Jim Collier recovered the ball in the end zone. In cold weather then, quarterbacks didn't wear gloves. Neither did any of the other players. But they wore ripple-soled football shoes instead of cleats.

"The cold itself wasn't that bad," Starr said. "We've practiced in 15-below-zero weather in Green Bay and it didn't seem this cold. But the wind was brutal."

With a 17-14 lead and slightly more than 2 minutes remaining, the Giants had a third-andfour at their 39-yard line. Halfback Frank Gifford ran a sweep to the right. But in the pileup, Gino Marchetti, the Colts' all-pro defensive end, had an ankle broken.

"I had that first down," Gifford said. "If the referee hadn't been so concerned about helping Marchetti and had marked the ball first, we'd have had the first down and the championship. But he took so much time getting Marchetti out of the pileup, when he put the ball down we were still a few inches short."

In 1956 the Giants won their last championship with a 47-7 rout of the Chicago Bears in their first seasoo at Yankee Stadium, where the "DEE-fense, DEE-fense" chant began. That day the Giants wore white sneakers supplied by Andy Robustelli, their Hall of Fame defensive end who owned a sporting-goods store.

FREMANTLE, Australia - The international jury pondering the survival of Australia IV adjourned Friday night to seek more information before deciding whether the Ameri-ca's Cup defender finals will be an all-Kookaburra affair.

One more disqualification would drop Alan Bond's flagship to 71 points - five below presently sec-ond-place Kookaburra II and 12 behind first-place Kookaburra III - and halt the 1983 victor's $13 million defense campaign.

Both Kookaburra II skipper lain Murray and the Australia IV campaign's executive director, Warren Jones, indicated they will seek court action if the jury decision isn't favorable.

"It's certainly possible we would go to court " said Murray, who is protesting Australia IV's use of a oew sail called a gennaker. The gennaker is an asymmetrical sail that is a cross between a genoa and a spinnaker, and enhances speed on a close reach to medium to heavy winds.

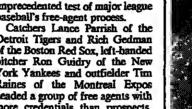

"I hope fervently we doo't have to resort to legal action," Jones said, bot added that the Bond camp would seek legal recourse to stop its ouster from the best-of-nine series starting Jan. 14.

After surpping Australia IV of six points for colliding with Kooka-burra III io the last race of the semifinals, the jury of five men and women started deliberating on the sail issue Thursday and reconvened Friday night. The jurors adjourned after an hour "for the purpose of seeking further information" and will reconvene "later in the weekend," said a spokesman, Lyall Rowe. "There has been so much pressure upon them they decided oot to meet at the Port Aothority Building as usual but at a secret place," he said. Brian Willis, the Kookaburras's sailing rules adviser said the jury cred in not accepting the conclusions of the cup matches' chief measurer, who found an infringement of the rules over the way the gennaker was fastened to Australia IV. In their first ruling, the jury said that although the use of a rope extended the sail forther aft than was permitted it was only for a short time, and the protest was dismissed. "But that's the whole point," Willis said. "You can't just say it's all right to break the rules for a

A Wedding and a Feud in the House of Jaipur

By Elisabeth Bumiller Washington Post Service

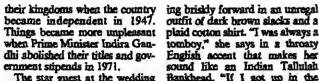

AIPUR, India --- The women got their emeralds out of the vault. The men wrapped their heads in scarlet turbans, then preened with their swords in front of the mirror. The queen mother, who counts Jacqueline Onassis and Queen Elizabeth II among her friends, arrived in her chanffeured white Mercedes. India has changed from the days when maharajas controlled one-third of the country, but the House of Jaipur, the nation's most glamorous clan of onetime royals, did not let that spoil its family reunion.

It was a gathering to mark the recent marriage of a son in an important branch of the Jaipur family. The groom arrived at the wedding by elephant. But the nearly weeklong get-together in this city of palaces was also a chance to celebrate the old traditions in a country that no longer recognizes them. The Jaipurs were among the richest of the country's 600 princely families, and even more than the others, they lived in the India of glitter and excess: tiger shoots, polo matches, party weekends at hunting lodges sur-rounded by the golden desert in what is now the modern Indian state of Rajasthan. The queen mother's grandfather kept trained parrots that rode little silver bicycles. Her mother had a gold tongue scraper and also a live turtle encrusted with diamonds and rubies that she used as a goodhuck charm at the gambling tables of France.

But things are not well with the Jaipurs these days. Among the topics at the wedding was a lawsuit over an estate estimated at $400 million that is splitting the it over an estate estimated at family, pitting the widowed queen mother against her stepson, the current maharaja. At the heart of the quarrel is whether the estate belongs to the whole family or the maharaja alone.

"It's only he who is creating this problem," the queen mother says of the maharaja, Bhawani Singh "Bubbles" to friends. Bubbles calls the situation "sad" but adds that "it's not like I have everything and the rest of them are out on the street."

"Yes, it is a lovely room," says his highness, who is wearing a V-neck sweater with two small holes in the front and a gold bracelet containing a diamond the size of a chickpea.

Bubbles is the second child and only son of Jai and his first wife, who were married in 1923, when Jai was only 12. The wife was from the Jodhpur family, much older than Jai, and the wedding was merchy an alliance. She was called "First Her Highness" and lived in the women's quarters. Bubbles was born when Jai was 18, and so much champagne flowed in the ensuing celebrations that his English nanny gave him his nick-name, which stuck

In 1932, Jai married a second wife, or "Second Her Highness." This was also arranged by the family. She gave birth to two sons, locy and Pat, and lived in the women's quarters. In 1940, Jai and the current queen mother married for love. At that time she was called "Third Her Highness" and gave birth to one son, Jagat.

The family insists that everyone got on well. "In those days, lots of people had two wives," says Joey, who manages some of the family investments. We were all treated the same. We never felt 'this is my mother, and this is not my mother.' Our father got on well with all

The jewelry firm Van Cleef and de Koouing, Hans Holmans, Frank Arpels has been fined SS million in New York for falsifying records to hardt, Mark Rothko and Clyfish evade sales taxes. Mayor Edward I. Still. Koch of New York said it was the largest penalty levied in the state in such a case. Two of the company's officers, Claude Arpels, 74, the president, and Al Schwartz, 66, the controller, received conditional discharges from state Supreme discharges from state Supreme Court Justice George Roberts after each pleaded guilty Thursday to a single count of a 273-count indict-ment. The judge fined Arpels $20,000, payable immediately, but spared Schwartz jail or a fine "probably because he was just fol-lowing directions."
